

HERE'S TO YOU

Raising their glasses to the LFHS Class of '25 are boys from the Class of '55. Including the girls, our class numbered only 100. Most of us lived out ordinary lives. But some proved exceptional.

Standing with bow tie, Jim Macke's rich baritone voice graced the air waves for listeners and choral audiences in Oregon. Beach and harbor improvements owe much to Byron Prais (wearing glasses) who served as Lake Forest Director of Building and Zoning.

Our Class Motto was: "We Do Good Work." At least until the 50th reunion when our irrepressible class comedian, Whitey Olson, changed it to: "We're Done Workin!"

Now another 20 years have passed. The dwindling number who remain still cherish classmates and memories from our four years together at LFHS. May it be the same for you.

As you plunge into the unknowable future, wishing you the very best – "Here's to You!"
